

Letter to the Editor of the Mt. Desert Islander, published September 26

(announcing the showing of the film in question at the Southwest Harbor Public Library on October 10.)

The film that for weeks last fall was the most-watched video on public television's website, and has been shown to audiences all over the world, is coming to MDI on Thursday evening, October 10, at the Southwest Harbor Public Library. "9/11: Explosive Evidence -- Experts Speak Out" offers strong confirmation of a concern expressed by over half the Americans in a recent national poll -- that there is something wrong with the picture we were all given about what happened in New York City on September 11, 2001.

In the film, dozens of experts -- structural, chemical, and fire protection engineers, physicists, explosives experts, and controlled-demolition technicians -- present the scientific evidence behind the concern that it took more than airplanes and fire to destroy the three World Trade Center towers that came down that day. These experts demonstrate the at-times glaring fraud in the official government "scientific" reports on the buildings, and explain the psychological reasons for why it can be so difficult to confront the implications of this information.

The film was produced by Architects and Engineers for 9/11 Truth, an organization of over 2000 registered architects and engineers. It previously produced the film "9/11: Blueprint for Truth" that was shown to a standing-room audience at the Southwest Harbor Library two years ago.

You may be one of the half of Americans who accept the picture of 9/11 we've been given, or one of the other half that has doubts about it. Either way, if you are concerned about what has happened since 9/11 based on that picture -- the wars-on-terror that our national leadership has acknowledged will never end, or the serious decline in the liberties we as Americans have taken for granted -- you will find this film both interesting and thought-provoking.

There will be time to talk about it afterwards for those who wish, and free DVD copies of the film will be available. Mark your calendar -- 7:00-8:30 PM, Thursday, October 10, Southwest Harbor Public Library.
